HOOFLAND'S GERMAN BITTERS AND Hoofland's German Tonic. The Great Remedies for all Diseases of the LIVER, STOMACH, OR DIGESTIVE ORGANS.

HOOFLAND'S GERMAN BITTERS Is composed of the pure juices (or, as they are medicinally termed, Extracts,) of Roots, Herbs, and Barks, making a preparation, highly concentrated, and entirely free from alcoholic admixture of any kind.

HOOFLAND'S GERMAN TONIC, Is a combination of all the ingredients of the Bitters, with the purest quality of Santa Cruz Rum, Orange, &c., making one of the most pleasant and agreeable remedies ever offered to the public. Those preferring a Medicine free from Alcoholic admixture, will use

HOOFLAND'S GERMAN BITTERS. Those who have no objection to the combination of the bitters, as stated, will use

HOOFLAND'S GERMAN TONIC. They are both equally good, and contain the same medicinal virtues, the choice between the two being a mere matter of taste, the Tonic being the most palatable. The stomach, from a variety of causes, such as indigestion, Dyspepsia, Nervous Debility, etc, is very apt to have its functions deranged. The Liver, sympathizing as closely as it does with the stomach, then becomes affected, the result of which is that the patient suffers from several or more of the following diseases:

Constipation, Flatulence, Inward Piles, Fullness of Blood to the Head, Acidity of the Stomach, Nausea, Heartburn, Disgust for Food, Fulness or Weight in the Stomach, Sour Eructations, Sinking or Fluttering at the Pit of the Stomach, Swimming of the Head, Hurried or Difficult Breathing, Fluttering at the Heart, Choking or Suffocating Sensations when in a lying posture, Dimness of Vision, Dots or Webs before the Sight, Dull Pain in the Head, Deficiency of Perspiration, Yellowness of the Skin and Eyes, Pain in the Side, Back, Chest, Limbs, etc., Sudden Flushes of Heat, Burning in the Flesh, Constant Imaginings of Evil, and Great Depression of Spirits.

The sufferer from these diseases should exercise the greatest caution in the selection of a remedy for his case, purchasing only that which he is assured from his investigations and inquiries possesses true merit, is skilfully compounded, is free from injurious ingredients, and has established for itself a reputation for the cure of these diseases. In this connection we would submit those well known remedies—

HOOFLAND'S GERMAN BITTERS AND HOOFLAND'S GERMAN TONIC, Prepared by DR. C. M. JACKSON, PHILADELPHIA, PA.

Twenty-two years since they were first introduced into this country from Germany, during which time they have undoubtedly performed more cures, and benefited suffering humanity to a greater extent, than any other remedies known to the public. These remedies will effectually cure Liver Complaint, Jaundice, Dyspepsia, Chronic or Nervous Debility, Chronic Diarrhœa, Diseases of the Kidneys, and all Diseases arising from a disordered Liver, Stomach, or Intestines.

DEBILITY, Resulting from any Cause whatever; PROSTRATION OF THE SYSTEM, induced by Severe Labor, Hardships, Exposure, Fevers, &c.

There is no medicine extant equal to these remedies in such cases. A tone and vigor is imparted to the whole system, the appetite is strengthened, food is enjoyed, the stomach digests promptly, the blood is purified, the complexion becomes sound and healthy, the yellow tinge is eradicated from the eyes, a bloom is given to the cheeks, and the weak and nervous invalid becomes a strong and healthy being.

PERSONS ADVANCED IN LIFE, And feeling the hand of time weighing heavily upon them, with all its attendant ills, will find in the use of this BITTERS, or the TONIC, an elixir that will instil new life into their veins, restore in a measure the energy and ardor of more youthful days, build up their shrunken forms, and give health and happiness to their remaining years.

NOTICE. It is a well established fact; that fully one half of the female portion of our population are seldom in the enjoyment of good health or, to use their own expression, never feel well. They are languid, devoid of all energy, extremely nervous, and have no appetite. To this class of persons the BITTERS, or the TONIC, is especially recommended.

WEAK AND DELICATE CHILDREN, Are made strong by the use of either of these remedies. They will cure every case of MARASMUS, without fail. Thousands of certificates have accumulated in the hands of the proprietor, but space will allow of the publication of but a few. These, it will be observed, are men of note and of such standing that they must be believed.

TESTIMONIALS.

HON. GEORGE W. WOODWARD, Chief Justice of the Supreme Court of Pa., writes: Philadelphia, March 18, 1767. "I find 'Hoofland's German Bitters' is a good tonic, useful in diseases of the digestive organs, and of great benefit in cases of debility, and want of nervous action in the system. Yours, truly, GEO. W. WOODWARD."

HON. JAMES THOMPSON, Judge of the Supreme Court of Pennsylvania. Philadelphia, April 23, 1866. "I consider 'Hoofland's German Bitters' a valuable medicine in case of attacks of Indigestion or Dyspepsia. I can certify this from my experience of it. Yours, with respect, JAMES THOMPSON."

FROM REV. JOSEPH H. KENNARD, D. D., Pastor of the Tenth Baptist Church, Philadelphia. Dr. Jackson—Dear Sir: I have been frequently requested to connect my name with recommendations of different kinds of medicines, but regarding the practice as out of my appropriate sphere, I have in all cases declined; but with a clear proof in various instances and particularly in my own family, of the usefulness of Dr. Hoofland's German Bitters, I depart for once from my usual course, to express my full conviction that, for general debility of the system, and especially for Liver Complaint, it is a safe and valuable preparation. In some cases it may fail; but usually, I doubt not, it will be very beneficial to those who suffer from the above causes. Yours, very respectfully, J. H. KENNARD, Eighth, below Coates St.

FROM REV. E. D. FENDALL, Assistant Editor Christian Chronicle, Philadelphia. I have derived decided benefit from the use of Hoofland's German Bitters, and feel it my privilege to recommend them as a most valuable tonic, to all who are suffering from general debility or from diseases arising from derangement of the liver. Yours truly, E. D. FENDALL.

CAUTION. Hoofland's German Remedies are counterfeited. See that the signature of C. M. JACKSON is on the wrapper of each bottle. All others are counterfeit. Principal Office and Manufactory at the German Medicine Store, No. 631 ARCH Street, Philadelphia, Pennsylvania.

HAVE COURAGE TO SAY, NO.

You're starting to-day on life's journey,
Alone on the highway of life;
You'll meet with a thousand temptations,
Each city with evil is rife.
This world is a stage of excitement;
There's danger wherever you go;
But if you are tempted in weakness,
Have courage, my boy, to say, No.

The siren's sweet song may allure you;
Beware of her cunning and art;
Whenever you see her approaching,
Be guarded and haste to depart.
The billiard saloons are inviting,
Decked out in their tinsel and show;
You may be invited to enter;
Have courage, my boy, to say, No.

The bright ruby wine may be offered—
No matter how tempting it be,
From poison that stings like an adder,
My boy, have the courage to flee.
The gambling hells are before you,
Their lights, how they dance to and fro,
If you should be tempted to enter,
Think twice, even thrice, ere you go.

In courage alone lies your safety,
When you the long journey begin,
And trust in a Heavenly Father
Will keep you unspotted from sin.
Temptations will go on increasing,
As streams from a rivulet flow,
But if you are true to your manhood,
Have the courage, my boy, to say, No.

Wilkins on the Piano.

"Mrs. Wilkins, of all the aggravating women I ever came across, you are the worst. I believe you'd raise a riot in the cemetery if you were dead, you would. Don't you ever go prowling around any Quaker meeting, or you'll break it up. Why? Why, you'd put any other man's back up until he broke his spine. O, you're too annoying to live; I don't want to bother with you. Give me more covers, and go to sleep."

"But, Wilkins, dear, just listen a minute. We must have that piano, and ——"

"Oh, don't, 'dear' me, I won't have it. You're the only dear thing around here; you're dear at any price. I tell you once for all that I don't get any new piano, and Mary Jane don't take singing lessons as long as I'm her father. There, if you don't understand that, I'll say it over, again. And now stop your clatter, and go to sleep. I'm tired of hearing you cackle."

"But Wilk——"

"Now don't aggravate me. I say Mary Jane shan't learn to sing, and plant another instrument of torture in this house, while I'm boss of the family. Her voice is just like yours; it's got a twang to it like blowing on the edge of a piece of paper."

"Ain't you ashamed, Wilk——"

"It's disgrace enough to have you sitting down and pretending to sing, and trying to deafen people, without having the children do it The first time I heard you sing, I started round to the station-house and got six policemen, because I thought there was a murder in the house, and they were cutting you up by inches. I wish somebody would. I wouldn't go for any policemen—not much."

"I declare, you are a perfect brute."

"Not much I wouldn't; but Smith he told me yesterday that his family were kept awake half the night by the noise you made, and said if I didn't stop those dogs from howling in my cellar, he'd be obliged to complain to the Board of Health."

"What an awful story, Mr. Wilk——"

"Then I told him it was you, and you thought you could sing; and he advised me as a friend to get a divorce, because he had said no man could live happily with any woman who had a voice like a cross cut saw. He said I might as well have a machine shop with a lot of files at work in the house as that, and he'd rather at any time."

"Phugh! I don't care what Smith says."

"And you are talking about a new piano! Why, haven't we got musical instruments enough in the house?—There's Holofernes Montgomery been blowing away in the garret for ten days with that old key bugle, until he's got so black in the face, that he won't get his color back for a month, and then he only gets a spurt out of her every now and then. He's blown enough wind in her to get up a hurricane, and I expect nothing else but he'll get the old machine so chock full that she'll blow back at him some day, and bust his brains out, and all along of your tomfoolery. You're a pretty mother, you are. You'd better go and join some asylum for feeble-minded idiots, you had."

"Wilkins, I declare you are too bad, for——"

"Yes, and there's Bucephalus Alexander; he's got his head full of your sentimental nonsense, and he thinks he's in love with a girl around the corner, and he meanders about and tries to sigh, and won't eat his victuals, and he's got to going down into the cellar and trying to sing, 'No one to love' on the coal-bin, and he liked to scare the hired girl out of her senses, so that she went up stairs and had a fit on the kitchen door-mat, and came near dying on my hands."

"That's not true, Mr. Wil——"

"And never came to until I put her head under the hydrant. And then what does Bucephalus' Alexander do but go round night before last and try to serenade the girl, until the old man h'isted up the sash and cracked away at Bucephalus Alexander with an old boot, and hit him in the face and blackened his eye, because he thought it was two cats a yelping. Hang such a mother as you are! You go right to work to ruin your own offspring."

"You're talking nonsense, Wilk——"

"You're about as fit to bring up children as a tadpole is to run a ferry-boat, you are; but, while I'm alive, Mary Jane takes no singing lessons. Do you understand? It's bad enough to have her battering at the piano like she had some grudge against it, and to have her visitors wriggle around, and fidget, and look miserable, as if they had cramp colic, while you make her play for them, and have them get up and lie, and ask what it was, and how 'beautiful' it is, and steep their souls in falsehood and hypocrisy, all on account of you. You'll have enough to answer for, old woman, without that."

"I never did such a thing, and you ——"

"Yes, and then you think Mary Jane can play don't you? You think she can sit down and tackle that piano, and jerk out more music than a whole orchestra, don't you? But she can't. You might just as well set a crow bar to opening an oyster, as to set her to playing the piano."

"You talk like a fool, Wilkins."

"Play! she play? Pshaw! Why, she's drummed away at that polka for six months, and she can't get her grip on it yet. You might as well try to sing a long metre hymn to a hornpipe, as to undertake to dance to that polka. It would jerk your legs out at the sockets, certain, or else it would give you St. Vitus' dance, and cripple you for life."

"Mr. Wilkins, I'm going to tell you a secret."

"Oh, I don't want to hear your secrets; keep them to yourself."

"It's about Mary Jane's singing."

"What?"

"Mary Jane, you know her singing."

"I don't know, and I don't want to; she shan't take lessons, so dry up."

"But she shall take them."

"I say she shant."

"She shall, and you can't help it."

"By George, what do you mean? I'm master in this house, I'd like you to know."

"Yes, but she's been taking lessons for a whole quarter, while you were down town, and I paid the bill out of the market money."

"Well, I hope I may shot! You don't mean to say that? Well, if you ain't a perfectly abandoned wretch, hang me. I'm going to sleep alone after this."

And Wilkins kicked out on to the floor, and went into the other room.

But he made up with his wife, for I heard him quarreling with her next day, because she left a work-basket full of needles on the chair, covered with a piece of work, and he sat down on it.

Story of a Paris Rag-Picker.

The wife of one of the most eminent bankers of Paris went some days since to one of our most fashionable mantua-makers to try on some dresses. As she was leaving she complimented the mantua-maker upon the courtesy, good-nature, and skill of the seamstress who tried on the apparel. The mantua-maker replied, "She is one of my most valuable workwomen and I should like to be able to pay her a higher salary than she receives, but my expenses are so very heavy I am obliged to cut down everybody to the lowest figure; besides, Louise is not strong and is able to give me only half a day, which reduces her wages fifty per cent. I believe, however, she works at home." At midnight the banker's wife returned from the Italian Opera, where Mlle. Patti had drawn an immense audience. As she was entering her door she saw from the carriage window a girl rag-picker hunting carefully among the refuse of the house thrown in a heap before the door. The girl had the usual rag picker's basket on her back, a lantern in her left hand, and a curved pick in the right hand. She was wretchedly, very wretchedly, attired, but the meanness of the habit was almost redeemed by its cleanliness. She was in rags, but she protested they were not her fault, for they were clean rags. The banker's wife instantly recognized Louise. She said to her, "Mlle. Louise, come with me, I must speak to you." The girl hesitated, but losing self-command in her embarrassment at being discovered, she followed the banker's wife into her boudoir. Pressed with questions, she related her story, which was as follows: "I am the eldest of five children; my father died suddenly three years ago; my mother some months since became paralyzed, and is unable to move hand or foot without assistance. To support her and to give my brothers and sisters trades, I am a seamstress in the morning and a rag-picker at night. It may seem incredible to you, but it is nevertheless true. I make more money as rag-picker than as seamstress. Therefore I hasten at 4 o'clock to quit my mistress to return home and disguise myself as a rag-picker in order to go my rounds in Paris. I have been able by dint of economy to lay by something besides defraying all the expenses of our family, and I hope to be able in eighteen months or two years to resign basket, pick and lantern. I beseech you madame, to keep my secret until then if you would not ruin a poor girl whose battle of life has been anything but easy." Tears trickled down the cheeks of the banker's wife at this tale of misery honorably and gallantly combated. She took Louise's hands in hers and told her henceforward she would support the mother and other children, and that she would set her, Louise, up as a mantua-maker. She has kept her promise

[Moral, for home consumption; there are rag-pickers or other deserving persons in every community, but persons, like the banker's wife are so rare that we have to go to wicked Paris for a little tale, all too true, that should open the hearts of Christian men and women everywhere.]

He is tall enough who walks uprightly

The Moral Telescope.

JOSEPH ——, ESQ.—DEAR SIR:—You and I were once young, but are now old. Our social relation has continued so long a topic of conversation, and is far exhausted, that I fear in writing, I shall fail to introduce a single idea that has not passed under your review, until it has become stale. Thus it is especially with our lamentations over our illiterate and humble destiny. How shall I resuscitate, and keep alive upon the altar of friendship that living sympathy, without which, our earthly pilgrimage would be a dreary solitude? Could I lead you down through the earth's crust, say eight or ten miles to that region below the silucian, where life was ever impossible, and return to our alluvium home with geological hammer in hand, through a vast wilderness of fossiliferous remains, which lived and moved countless ages before our earth received its present beautiful form from the plastic hand of God—mark each epoch, where our race of beings ended, and successive and more perfect races took their beginning from their Creator's hand—reflect upon the strange features of this our earth, in its diversified forms, long before it was clothed in its present gorgeous riches and beauty, a suitable residence for intelligent and immortal beings; and then return to our tertiary home, exulting with Chalmers, Miller, Harris, and other Christian chieftains, in their triumphant harmony of our history by Moses, and the utmost claims of science for the antiquity of the material of our world. Could we unbar the door and enter the dark regions of early creation, witness the chaos of primitive matter, mark the progress of successive creations, ever since, at Jehovah's fiat, matter burst from nonentity into chaos, read the hieroglyphics upon the rocks, learn the age of each order of remains in their successive generations, down till our world, through countless ages of improvement, was under the plastic hand of God, brought into its present form, clothed in all its gorgeous beauty, laughing at the artists' chisel and brush in their vain efforts at imitation—learn how to expose the sophistry of that class of philosophers who presume to make a world of matter and of mind without a God, as taught by Lamark, Oken, and the anonymous "vistages of creation," and throw into ridicule that development theory by which they would evoke life and perfection out of fire, mist, albumen, infusoria, mollusc, monad, or some imaginary substance, thus: in a few millions of years they would present to you the slimy tadpole, and in a few millions more the monkey, and from him to the appearance of man, would require but a few millions of years; and thus these sucking atheists would by the fortuitous concourse of intangible matter make this world of ours in all its perfection.

Could we enter the arena of chemistry and physical forces, and explain those laws which were impressed upon matter when it was yet "without form and void," through which every atom sought and, by affinity, found its place with other particles, until, altogether, this our earth in all its wealth and beauty was fitted for our habitation—write a vocabulary by which those wonderful transformations, with their ancient history, might be explained, and expose the fallacy of the unknown laws of fortuity, and prove by demonstration the necessity of a God of unbounded power, wisdom and goodness—then away with your thirty thousand Grecian gods, away with your Pantheistic impersonal God, and the sleeping god of Epicurius; but deny us not our right of access to our living, personal and active God, who reigns in the armies of heaven and amongst the children of men.

Could we roll back the barriers with which every science is bounded, and which bid defiance to the loftiest human intellect, and expatiate in that vast, untrodden territory, lying between the most exalted created intellect and an infinite God.

Could we, like Gabriel, when the command was given him in the central heavens to fly quickly to Babylon, to answer the prayers of the loyal prophet, which was done with such celerity that the heavenly messenger arrived before Daniel was done speaking; just think how he started from the throne of the Eternal, somewhere in the vast empire of God, and flying with angelic speed through immensity, passing world after world and system after system in his flight, each swelling out in majestic grandeur on his approach, and each diminishing in the recession, till they disappeared in the distance; onward and onward he flies, till he crosses the milky way, through a wilderness of worlds blazing in awful grandeur; then onward till our solar system appears, a single speck in the distance, but swelling into grandeur on his approach; then onward a little farther and earth appears, at first a dim point, but soon expands into a moon, and in a moment the heavenly tourist descends through the blue atmosphere spread over the plains of Babylon, and lays his hand upon the prostrate Daniel, with words of comfort to the anxious prophet.

Or could we with suitable magnifying power, take our stand upon that grand luminary in the center of Pleiads, around which astronomers declare our sun, with its sisterhood of suns with which our heavens are bespangled, with all their satellites, are revolving—survey the magnitude of such a body as can hold in their orbits those countless suns and systems whilst they perform their ceaseless revolutions around it as their center of gravitation; and then discover that it was but a satellite to some other body, exceeding it as far in magnitude and grandeur as it exceeds our little earth; and that glorious body only one of another sisterhood of ten thousand equally glorious bodies which in their turn are held subordinate to, and revolve around another body as their center of gravitation, with sufficient attraction to keep them in their orbits; and after we had thus multiplied system upon system, far beyond the reach of human powers, until we discovered the central heavens, where Jehovah reigns universal King of kings and Lord of lords, directing all events both in the physical and moral universe, from infusorial up to unmeasured worlds, as well as the angelic hosts.

But had we all those privileges, with such lofty intellects that we would have to stoop to meet the highest order of human or angelic powers, still; without Christ, we might be "in the gall of bitterness and in the bond of iniquity," or in the abode of eternal despair. If to all those high privileges you would add, not the gold of Ophir, not the control of the greatest empire upon earth, but the government of our planet, in fee simple, still, pride would be but another name for folly, whilst God has written, not only in his word but upon the whole face of creation and in the very atmosphere which we breathe, "dust thou art, and to dust thou shalt return;" and could we record our names highest in the temple of earthly fame, if insubordinate to the authority of heaven, the King in his glory would say that where he is we should never come.

But your destiny and mine was to move in the humblest walks of life and to drink deep in the cup of that just sentence, "by the sweat of thy face shalt thou eat thy bread." There were none to lead us up through the vast fields of philosophic lore, none to carry us up into those poetic regions to feast in imaginary bliss, nor were there any to teach us how to use or to enjoy those rhetorical powers by which kingdoms have been raised up, and under the influence of which thrones have trembled and empires have been shaken to pieces.

Whilst moving in the dust, bemoaning the hardness of our lot, a benevolent Prince presented to us a moral telescope, of such wonderful powers that we could survey time from the morning of its birth down to the present moment, and by a single movement we could look into the dark vista of the future, down till "time shall cease and be no more;" and still further, we are permitted by it to look as far into eternity as mortal eye can see or mortal mind can comprehend. Our telescope has not only the power of enlarging the visual field but also that of sound. HOPE.

BLACK BASS.—The Black Bass takes a fly, a "spoon" or a spinning minnow, during the Summer months; and makes, when hooked, a hard fight; rushing hither and thither and springing into the air as actively as a trout. In late Autumn it will bite at a standing bait. During May they come in pairs and make a spawning bed on a sandy bottom in from four to six feet of water. This they sweep with their tails after the manner of trout, and the male remains on guard over the spawn, and drives away the many intruders which hang about greedy for this savory food. In June, the young—recognizable by a black band across the tail—are first observed, and these, by Autumn, have grown to a length of three or four inches. At one year old they weigh from a quarter to half a pound, and increase about one half pound yearly, till they arrive at six or eight pounds, according to food and water. They are in prime condition in August and September, but in winter are black and lean. The objection in some cases to this species is its great voraciousness. It destroys almost everything before it except the perch, and even kills out pickerel by devouring the young. But in ponds, already infested with pickerel and abounding in "shiners," it may be introduced with much profit, because it replaces bad fish by good. It should be carefully excluded, however, from all waters that contain trout, white fish, or other valuable species, and from ponds communicating with such waters; for it is a most restless and pushing robber, eagerly searching and following the inlets and outlets of its pond. Of this propensity the Brookline reservoir gives the most curious instance. Nine black bass, of two and a half to three pounds, were put there in July 1862; since then, in the examination of the water pipes leading from this reservoir to Long Pond, these fishes have been found in considerable numbers and of large size; and moreover, either by their young or their eggs, they have penetrated the screen at the mouth of the pipe and have appeared in the pond itself! So these black bass, apparently impelled by no other feeling than that of restlessness, performed an underground journey of fifteen miles in a brick aqueduct, whose greater diameter was six feet!

Fanny Fern says that for every woman fool she will find a man fit to be her mate, and that because a few men in New York and London and Paris, wear corsets, and dye their whiskers and hair, and put out their hollow cheeks and shrunken calves, it does not follow that Victor Hugo and John Bright, and the great army of brave men who won our late victory, are all popinjays.

In an obituary notice of an old citizen, an Ohio paper says: "He was honest and industrious until enfeebled by disease and age." What a pity to become dishonest with age.

FOR GOVERNOR,

Hon. DAN'L. J. MORRELL,

OF CAMBRIA COUNTY.

[Subject to the decision of the Republican State Convention.]

Hon. D. J. Morrell.

We this week present to the Republicans of Pennsylvania, Hon. Daniel J. Morrell, of Cambria county, as our choice for the next Governor, subject to the decision of the Republican State Convention, which meets in Philadelphia, on the twenty-third day of June next. This is not done hastily nor inconsiderately, for we have contemplated this step for months, and would have announced it long ago, but for reasons that Mr. Morrell might know, as well as that several appointments in this locality were pending, and had we done so before they were settled, our motives and our sincerity in the matter might have been impugned. They have been settled, and we can now very properly name our choice, without being charged that it is done for the purpose of controlling or even of having a voice in naming men to fill positions under the control of Mr. Morrell. We have several reasons for desiring to elevate Mr. Morrell to the position for which we have named him, which are good and substantial, as follows:

1st. We are tired of men who do not understand what the people of the State, want.

2d. Mr. Morrell is a business man.

3d. We want a business man in the Executive chair.

4th. Mr. Morrell is one of the largest manufacturers in the State, and is intimately acquainted with the wants of business men.

5th. He is a strong tariff man.

6th. He has shown, by his course in Congress, that he is eminently fit for the position.

7th. He means business all the time, and has the ability to inaugurate measures calculated to benefit the laborer as well as the manufacturer.

8th. He is a statesman without being a politician in the general acceptation of the term.

For these and many other reasons we urge the people of the State to consider the claims and fitness of one whose record in Congress has been eminently satisfactory to the people of Pennsylvania. No man in Congress stands higher than the member from the 17th District, for financial ability, and no man is looked up to for his opinions on all leading questions, or listened to with more attention, than the Hon. D. J. Morrell.

ADJOURNED.—The Pennsylvania Legislature adjourned without day, at 12 o'clock, noon, on Friday last. As we can say nothing in favor of it, as a body, we prefer to say but little, if anything at all, about it. It is sickening to think of, and the less said, the better. We have a high regard for a few, and a very few, individual members, but what do they amount to in such a mob as we had in Harrisburg all winter? They can enter their solemn protest against the corruptions practised before their eyes and in defiance of all honesty, all decency and all self-respect, but there it ends. The annual exhibition of presenting the Speaker, clerks, and each other, with valuable gifts, as if to even keep before them the remembrance of their infamy and shame, was gone through with, the usual number of affecting and sad farewells pronounced, and after completely slobbering all over each other, by going through the usual comedy in several acts, of "I tickle you, and you tickle me," the Legislature adjourned, sine die, after three months and a half of feasting, debauchery and unwise legislation, and the people said —Thank God! We have no taste to follow the subject further, nor to speak ill of a Republican legislature.

☞Governor Curtin has been confirmed Minister to Russia. Old wig-wag could not allow it to pass without making a scurrilous attack upon the Governor. But we are happy to announce that he survives. Senator Scott very properly rebuked Simon for his contemptible littleness in thus assailing a man who, of all others in this Commonwealth, holds the affections of the people.

COUNT THE COST.—Senator Sumner says the damage done by the Alabama exceeds a hundred millions. England holds nearly a thousand millions of our securities, in the shape of government bonds and railway stocks. Let her, therefore, count the cost should her unjust denial of our claims force us to war and repudiation.

☞Fort Moultrie, in Charleston harbor, is without a garrison. Its dilapidated condition shows that it will soon become one of the things of the past. The chain of Confederate earthworks and batteries extending along the entire front of the island facing the city and James Island remains undisturbed.

Sumner's Speech.

We have hastily looked over the great and exhaustive speech of Senator Sumner, delivered in Executive session against the ratification of the Johnson-Clarendon treaty for the settlement of claims, known as the Alabama claims treaty, and only regret that it is too lengthy for a place in our columns. It is a masterly as well as a convincing argument against the treaty, and elicited the congratulations of Senators, regardless of party. But one Senator (McCreery of Kentucky) had the fool-hardiness to vote for the ratification. The Washington Chronicle, in an article reviewing the speech, relates an incident which "added to the dignity and gave a poetic tinge to the proceeding. There was a prospect of the vote on the treaty being postponed for a day, when Mr. Scott, the new Senator from Pennsylvania, rose and called attention to the fact that the 13th of April was the anniversary of the firing upon Fort Sumter; and he suggested whether it would not be appropriate to mark it by the rejection of a treaty made in the interest of a Power which, from that day down to the fall of Richmond, had done no act that was not either intended to help the rebellion or to refuse justice to those who were fighting against it. He added, too, that such a decision would be now appropriate since the Senate had just confirmed the illustrious scholar, Mr. Motley, as American Minister at London, who would soon go forth to begin his work under these ample and significant instructions, and who, in his great speech before the Historical Society of New York, on the 16th of December, 1868, had, among other memorable sayings, prefigured the destiny of our country in these glowing words:"

It is of human progress that I speak to night. It is of progress that I find a startling result when I survey the spectacle which the American present displays. The nation stands on the point toward which other people are moving. It has put itself—or rather destiny has placed it—more immediately than other nations, in subordination to the law governing all bodies political, as Kepler's law controls the motions of the planets. The law is progress; the result democracy. Nearly forty years ago the clear, philosophical mind of De Tocqueville was so impressed by this comparatively infant republic, the phenomena of which he had examined with microscopic minuteness and with statesmanlike breadth of vision that he exhorted his countrymen and Europe in general to accept the fact that democracy was the preordained condition of the human race—a condition to which the world was steadily tending—and to seek happiness in conforming to the divine command, instead of wearing themselves out on futile struggles with the inevitable.

☞The Temperance Vindicator, which has for a month or two been publishing the list of applicants for tavern license, together with their signers, has in its last week's issue the names of applicants in this borough, and also the names of the persons who recommend them. A number of journals have expressed their opinions on the editor's course, in this respect, none of them very favorable. It is not to be expected that the signers would approve of having their names thus paraded before the public; but they cannot hope to effect anything by hurling their anathemas at the editor—nor can the editor expect to gain any good result by using invectives against the whiskey seller, and drinker, that we have too often seen in his paper. The right of the editor to publish these names, we think, cannot be questioned, for the responsibility rests with him as publisher; and we cannot think it is a case of libel—for the same petitions are open to the inspection of the public in the Prothonotary's office, at any time, and the editor does no more than simply publish the names without comment.

There is a question of expediency involved in thus publishing the names of signers to an applicant's petition for license, which time will determine. That it will pay the publisher is best known to himself; but his boldness may meet with the approval of the temperance people, while as we have intimated his vindictive language may not. What effect it will have on the community, after the fuss is over, in the way of keeping twelve citizens from signing petitions may be seen in the future. In some small towns there may be difficulty in obtaining signers, but we don't think there will be much difficulty in Huntingdon, where one whisky-seller signs for another. There may be some squirming among those who are not engaged in the liquor business, as well as among those who are; but they have nothing to say if they give their names again, for no man can take offence at letting the people know that he feels that he is doing right, whether the public thinks so or not.

☞Some of Grant's appointments are unpopular with Senators, and Grant complains that many of his appointments which are objected to were made on the recommendation of the very Senators who refuse to confirm them.

☞A temperance political party has been organized in Ohio. Steps have been taken toward the establishment of a financial system for the new party, and also toward the establishment of a party organ.

☞The large crowd of office-seekers, who have been lounging around Washington since the day of inauguration, have nearly all disappeared.

☞Twenty-one States have already ratified the fifteenth amendment to the Constitution.

The Last of the Twitchell Case.

Last week Mrs. Twitchell published a batch of confessions, semi-confessions, letters, notes, entreaties, exhortations, statements, and so on, purporting to be the production of the brain of the murderer and suicide Twitchell, and written to her. The budget is premised by a statement purporting to be written by Mrs. Twitchell herself, but it bears the marks of a masculine if not a shrewd attorney's hand. Mrs. Twitchell, of course, denies all knowledge of her husband's crime, and declares that she knew not her mother was dead until she saw her "lying on the settee in the kitchen a dead woman." The whole affair from beginning to end—from the murder itself on through the ordeal of the trial, the conviction of Twitchell, the efforts to obtain his reprieve from the Governor, the novel application to the United States Supreme Court to set aside the verdict, the declaration of Twitchell's spiritual adviser that he believed him to be innocent of the crime, the incoherent statement of Twitchell accusing his wife of the murder of her mother, the suicide of Twitchell, down to the Munchausen-like exposures—is but a concatenation of horrors, inconsistencies and absurdities of legal quibbles, cowardly accusations, despicable efforts of the equally guilty to shift the bloody responsibility from the shoulders of one to those of another which could hardly be conceived in or born from any other brains than those of Philadelphia lawyers. There are stupendous lies out somewhere; and where everything bears the taint of iniquity the judgment of the community will not err if it condemn all concerned.

Statement of Mrs. Twitchell.

PHILADELPHIA, April 13, 1869.

Mrs. Twitchell has furnished to the Press a full statement in regard to the murder of her mother. In the first place she disavows any knowledge of how or by whom the murder was committed, but does not intimate or insinuate it may have been done by her husband. She then goes into a long explanation of her ceasing to visit Twitchell in jail, and says after his conviction as she was leaving his cell, he pressed into her hand a closely written paper, which she found to be an appeal to her to save his life by confessing that she had committed the murder, and followed by a story that she had committed the murder in a quarrel, and lawyers had been consulted who said she could not be harmed On a subsequent visit, he gave her another paper, conveying another story she was to tell. She had become criminal with one Lee, who had with her concerted a plan to rob and murder Mrs. Hill. On another occasion he gave her another written appeal to save him, and recommended her to say Mrs Hill had not been murdered at all, but had fallen from the window. All these documents commence with appeals to her love, &c., to save him. They are in Twitchell's hand-writing, but have evidently been drawn up for him by some legal mind. The whole statement throws but little new light on the affair, but explains the conduct of Mrs. Twitchell.

☞The last Mount Union News contains an article written by Mr. John Dougherty, headed "Huntingdon:—Instance of Masterly Inactivity Policy" It starts out with saying "this county town of great aspirations without the energy befitting a wealthy and intellectual society, claiming to be, made the head of Steamboat slack water navigation, and point of transhipment for the products of the Lake Regions, was so indifferent to their own best pecuniary interests as to neglect to attend on Tuesday evening the 13th inst., at the court house, a convention of the friends of the Buffalo & Washington City Railroad to send delegates to meet the friends of this route at St. Mary's on the 12th of May, inst. (?)" This breathless paragraph is immediately followed by the author's expression "We were unwell and unable to be present."

The author Mr. D. is right in saying Huntingdon is "indifferent" to this project; but the fault is not with them, as much as it is with those who father the project. It is their place to give us more light on the subject, and awake the people by pamphlets, the Mount Union News, circulars, and other documents, and not to expect the people to turn out en masse at a Convention before they know what that Convention proposes to do. Our people, we have no doubt, would cheerfully contribute to this or any other object that would advance their interests, provided they were sufficiently enlightened on the subject. We are sorry Mr. D. was "unwell," for (as he must think), no project is to be accomplished unless he has his say so, and our people are just as ready to hear him as any body else. Give us more light, Mr. D., and don't attribute the "masterly inactivity" of Huntingdon to your own negligence.

THE ÆTNA STILL AHEAD.
IT has been tried and has never failed to give satisfaction to the purchaser. Farmers will find it to their advantage to call on the subscriber during the April court and examine the above machine. It will be on exhibition at the Court House in Huntingdon during the two weeks of court.
It is a combined Machine; can be changed from a Mower to a Reaper in a few moments; can be worked with a slow team, it being higher geared than other machines and the draft being reduced to the lowest attainable point. Reaping and Mowing with the Ætna is no harder on the team than plowing oats and stubble. It is believed by all who have tried it that it is the machine best adapted to the wants of the farmers in this county. It has no side draft and no weight on the horses' necks.
We will also have one of the Wood Reapers and Mowers on the ground at the same time. Farmers intending to purchase machines this season will do well to examine the above machines before purchasing elsewhere. All you want is to examine the Ætna to enable you to make up your mind what machine to buy. I am the authorized agent of Messrs. Wharton & Maguire for the above machines, also for the Willoughby Gum spring Drill.
I will also have one of the famous Harpoon Hay-forks on hand, which every farmer should examine whether he needs a fork or not. Every farmer should have one. They are the best in the market. No farmer that tries one could be induced to purchase any other kind. I have the exclusive right of this county. Wharton & Maguire are my agents for the sale of the above Hay Fork. Any other person selling the above Fork in Huntingdon county will be dealt with according to law in such cases. Don't forget where to call. At Wharton & Maguire's, or at the Court House during court week.

A meeting of the Agricultural Society of Huntingdon county, was held at the Court House in the borough of Huntingdon, on Tuesday evening, the 13th inst, at 7½ o'clock, Graffus Miller, Esq, President of the Society, in the chair.

The minutes of the last meeting were read by the Secretary and approved.

Destructive Fire in Altoona.

A very destructive fire occurred in Altoona, on Thursday night last, which destroyed eighteen or twenty buildings, among which were the Western Hotel, a hotel and brewery belonging to Kolley & Walls, six houses belonging to Mr. Elliott, house belonging to Wise, two houses belonging to Mr. G. F. Patton, and several houses belonging to McMahon, Matten, Works and Peterson. Also Piper's livery stable, near which the fire broke out. A number of the buildings contained stores, among which was the Carpet and Furnishing store of our young friends Patton & Lackey, much of whose goods were destroyed by water as well as fire. The loss is estimated at $75,000, and is partially covered by insurance to the amount of $16.000

The fire commenced about seven in the evening, and lasted until midnight. It was with great difficulty that the flames could be subdued, as the supply of water, it was believed, was cut off from the reservoir by the fiends who fired the buildings.

The fire destroyed one of the best squares in the centre of the city, and twenty-two families are without homes About eight or ten houses still remain in the square, which were saved by the intervention of three brick buildings and the indomitable perseverance of the firemen and citizens.

The Moral Telescope.

It is but justice to the author of the Moral Telescope to say, that while he at times would seem to undervalue intellectual attainments, he is in reality a most strenuous advocate of education and of the sciences. His estimate is a relative one, which without degrading knowledge, in itself and for itself considered, would yet exalt to the highest position that wisdom which comes from above. Of this we can offer no better evidence than the fact that by constant study and singleness of purpose, he has overcome the want of early advantages, and made himself one of the best informed men of the community. A FRIEND.

The Aurora Borealis.

There was a splendid display of the auroral lights last Thursday night. It commenced soon after sunset and continued till after midnight. The period of greatest brilliancy was about 10 o'clock, when almost the entire visible heavens were covered with lines of pale green light, while an irregular luminous arch appeared above the northern horizon, its extreme east and west edges being faintly tinged with red. The electrical condition of the atmosphere during the aurora is evinced by the fact that the wires of the Western Union Telegraph were worked without batteries at either end of the line.

Night Scenes in The Bible.

Many of the most affecting and most important scenes described in the Bible, transpired under the splendors of oriental night. Sodom and Egypt, Beersheba and Babylon, Carmel and Gilboa, Olivet and Emmaus, Jerusalem and the sea of Galilee, have each, by night, been witnesses of the power and glory of the omnipotent Jehovah

The author of "Night Scenes in the Bible," has followed the shadow of night across the landscape of divine revelation, and grouped together the sacred scenes which are made awful or impressive by the mantle of darkness. He has written it in fine style and evinces careful thought, good taste and a devout spirit, and the mind of the careful reader loves to dwell upon the scenes portrayed in the illustrations. The excellence of the work has been completed in its engravings These are the work of superior artists and are of unrivalled beauty, grandeur, delicacy and excellence. They alone speak volumes, and the person who takes up the book to give it merely a glance will be led by its great attractiveness of print and beauty of language to read it to the end. We have gazed for many minutes contemplating the beautiful engravings, and been profited thereby.

The author is Rev. Daniel March, D. D. Ziegler, McCurdy & Co., Publishers, Philadelphia, P., Cincinnati, O.; Chicago, Ill.; St. Louis, Mo.

Seven years ago the Plantation Bitters were but little known. To-day there is not a nook or corner of our land where they are not found and used. The sale has reached the enormous number of five millions of bottles annually, and it is steadily increasing. It only shows what can be done with a really good medicine, and a systematic course of making it known. Perhaps no medicine in the world was ever so deservedly popular as the Plantation Bitters. Go where you will, among the rich or poor, and you will always find these Bitters in use. Their merit has become an established fact, and we cordially recommend them in cases of dyspepsia, loss of appetite, chills and fever, headache, &c.

MRS. SARAH C. STONEBRAKER, wife of Mr. John M. Stonebraker, of Mill Creek, departed this life April 11th, 1869, aged 27 years.

In health she was loved by all who knew her. She was a consistent member of the Baptist Church for ten years previous to her death summons. In her separation the church has lost a very efficient member—her husband a fond companion—her parents a dutiful child, and her two little children, (a little girl of 10 years and a little boy of four years,) a christian mother. On Friday previous to her death, whilst she yet could speak, she called her family to her bed-side and gave each one her parting blessing. It is seldom such truly christian death-bed scenes are witnessed. Her expression was that it being God's will to sever her earthly ties, she had nothing to regret—that her lamp was full and burning—that she only waited the coming of the bridegroom to bid her enter.

Loved in death these lips that sang
Its sweet anthems to the Saviours name;
Now joined with all the Heavenly hosts,
Praising Father, Son and Holy Ghost.

SPECIAL NOTICES.

BEAR IN MIND,

That MISHLER'S HERB BITTERS is skilfully compounded, free from injurious component parts, agreeable to the taste and destructive to disease. If you detect any change from the natural functions of your system, no matter how trivial, or where located, or if disease has already entrenched itself, the really true and reliable remedy in either case is Mishler's Herb Bitters. This assertion is based upon what we know it will do in relieving, curing and warding off disease. For want of space we cannot detail the diversified uses of this Bitters, but its general effects upon the human system are to purify the blood and secretions; correct morbid changes in the blood, equalize its circulation, enrich its constituents and regulate its supply; it imparts vitality and elasticity to every organ; overcomes all functional derangements; assists in the process of digestion; creates a healthy appetite; prevents and cures miasmatic and intermittent fevers, dyspepsia, liver complaint, nervous headache, kidney affections, and revives the physical energies by infusing new life and power into the system. ap14om

Material Convulsions in 1868.

The year 1868 will long be remembered for its terrible earthquakes, eruptions, tidal waves and hurricanes. On January 3d, Vesuvius exhibited great activity, and after a season of comparative rest, became terribly agitated in October and November, throwing out streams of lava and showers of pumice stones. Shocks of earthquakes were felt at the same time in Italy, France, Germany, and the British Isles. On the 27th of March, the Island of Hawaii in the Sandwich groupe, was violently convulsed. A tidal wave sixty feet high swept in from the sea, destroying villages, and drowning both people and cattle.

The most dreadful visitation of the year was in Peru and Equador, where a tremendous earthquake took place on the 13th of August, overthrowing several cities and destroying many thousands of lives. The ocean was heaved into immense surging waves, which extended their undulations over the whole of the Pacific, breaking with tremendous force on the shores of South America, California, the Sandwich Isles, Japan and New Zealand. On the 21st of October an earthquake of considerable violence visited California, damaging the city of San Francisco and causing some loss of lives. On the 30th of October at eleven o'clock at night, England was visited by a very palpable shock of an earthquake which caused great alarm wherever it was felt. An earthquake at Taranaki, New Zealand, destroyed a large amount of property.

On the night of January 31st a terrible gale burst over London and extended its ravages throughout the country, even including Scotland and Ireland. Many lives were lost and a vast amount of property destroyed. In March a terrific cyclone swept the Mauritius, rendering 50,000 persons houseless and destitute. On the Oaks day a terrific thunderstorm burst over London and a large part of England causing much destruction of property and the loss of many lives. About mid-summer extensive fires broke out in the moors of Yorkshire which laid many thousands of acres of land waste and destroyed stock and game. The great heat caused an early harvest in Great Britain, but labor had to be suspended during the heat of the day, and many deaths from sunstroke occurred. Excessive heat and drought prevailed in Russia, the United States and Canada, and the deaths from sunstroke in these places were greater than was ever known. In Europe vast tracts of forests in Esthonia and Livonia were ravaged by fire, and near Riga the sky was darkened by smoke for several weeks. It was not until the month of September that the English pastures were refreshed by a plentiful supply of rain; but when it came the heated earth put forth its verdure with extraordinary rapidity. During the year very disastrous inundations occurred in France, Switzerland and Italy.

SHE WOULDN'T MARRY A MECHANIC.—A young man began visiting a young woman, and appeared to be well dressed. One evening he called when it was quite late, which led the young girl to inquire where he had been.

"I had to work to night."

"What! do you work for a living? she inquired, in astonishment.

"Certainly," replied the young man; I am a mechanic."

"I dislike the name of a mechanic," and she turned up her pretty nose.

That was the last time the young man visited the young woman. He is now a wealthy man, and has one of the best women in the country for his wife.

The lady who disliked the name of mechanic is now the wife of a miserable fool, a regular vagrant about grog shops, and the soft, verdant and miserable girl is obliged to take in washing in order to support herself and children.

You dislike the name of mechanic, eh! You, whose brothers are but well dressed loafers.

We pity any girl who has so little brains, who is so verdant, so soft, as to think less of a young man for being a mechanic—one of God's noblemen—the most dignified and honorable personage of Heaven's creatures. Beware, young lady, how you treat young men who work for a living, for you may one day be menial to one of them yourself.

Far better discharge the well fed pauper, with all his rings, jewelry, brazenness and pomposity, and take to your affections the callous-handed, intelligent and industrious mechanic. Thousands have bitterly regretted their folly who have turned their backs to honesty. A few years have taught them a severe lesson.

FREE AND EASY QUESTIONS.—Out of the abundance of the heart the mouth speaketh—and sometimes the heart gets the better of the mouth. A correspondent of an exchange gives the following specimens of the reversal of the approved maxim—"think twice before you speak:"

A gentleman said to a rather stout lady: "Allow me to introduce my wife; she is not quite so large as you are, but I guess she is quite as good!"

The droll speech brought irresistibly to my mind a compliment paid to an accomplished lady who had taken board in Vermont last Summer for the improvement of her health. A woman said to her one day, when she saw her partially disrobed:

"Why, land sakes! heow scrawny you be! You haven't got the consumption nor nothin' have you?"

"I hope not," replied the lady.

"I had a darter who had the consumption; and jest afore she died, she looked eenamost as scrawny and yaller as you be!"

These kind of civilities are very abundant from New England people. I heard a Boston lady say to her opposite neighbor at a hotel dinner table: "Miss B——, did you have to have all your teeth drawed out when the dentist made you the false set?"

Ayer's Hair Vigor,

For restoring Gray Hair to its natural Vitality and Color.

A dressing which is at once agreeable, healthy, and effectual for preserving the hair. Faded or gray hair is soon restored to its original color with the gloss and freshness of youth. Thin hair is thickened, falling hair checked, and baldness often, though not always, cured by its use. Nothing can restore the hair where the follicles are destroyed, or the glands atrophied and decayed. But such as remain can be saved for usefulness by this application. Instead of fouling the hair with a pasty sediment, it will keep it clean and vigorous. Its occasional use will prevent the hair from turning gray or falling off, and consequently prevent baldness. Free from those deleterious substances which make some preparations dangerous and injurious to the hair, the Vigor can only benefit but not harm it. If wanted merely for a

HAIR DRESSING,

nothing else can be found so desirable. Containing neither oil nor dye, it does not soil white cambric, and yet lasts long on the hair, giving it a rich glossy lustre and a grateful perfume.

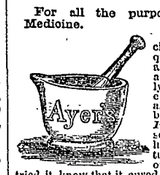
Ayer's Cathartic Pills,

For all the purposes of a Laxative Medicine.



Perhaps no one medicine is so universally required by everybody as a cathartic, nor was ever any before so universally adopted into use, in every country and among all classes, as this mild but efficient purgative Pill. The obvious reason is, that it is a more reliable and far more effectual remedy than any other. Those who have tried it, know that it cured them: those who have not, know that it cures their neighbors and friends, and all know that what it does once it does always—that it never fails through any fault or neglect of its composition. We have thousands upon thousands of certificates of their remarkable cures of the following complaints, but such cures are known in every neighborhood, and we need not publish them. Adapted to all ages and conditions in all climates; containing neither calomel or any deleterious drug, they may be taken with safety by anybody. Their sugar coating preserves them ever fresh and makes them pleasant to take, while being purely vegetable no harm can arise from their use in any quantity.

They operate by their powerful influence on the internal viscera to purify the blood and stimulate it into healthy action—remove the obstructions of the stomach, bowels, liver, and other organs of the body, restoring their irregular action to health, and by correcting, wherever they exist, such derangements as are the first origin of disease.

Minute directions are given in the wrapper on the box, for the following complaints, which these Pills rapidly cure:—

For Dyspepsia or Indigestion, Listlessness, Languor and Loss of Appetite, they should be taken moderately to stimulate the stomach and restore its healthy tone and action.

For Liver Complaint and its various symptoms, Bilious Headache, Sick Headache, Jaundice or Green Sickness, Bilious Colic and Bilious Fevers, they should be judiciously taken for each case, to correct the diseased action or remove the obstructions which cause it.

For Dysentery or Diarrhœa, but one mild dose is generally required.

For Rheumatism, Gout, Gravel, Palpitation of the Heart, Pain in the Side, Back and Loins, they should be continuously taken, as required, to change the diseased action of the system. With such change those complaints disappear.

For Dropsy and Dropsical Swellings they should be taken in large and frequent doses to produce the effect of a drastic purge.

For Suppression a large dose should be taken as it produces the desired effect by sympathy.

As a Dinner Pill, take one or two Pills to promote digestion and relieve the stomach.

An occasional dose stimulates the stomach and bowels into healthy action, restores the appetite, and invigorates the system. Hence it is often advantageous where no serious derangement exists. One who feels tolerably well, often finds that a dose of these Pills makes him feel decidedly better, from their cleansing and renovating effect on the digestive apparatus.
